NZSC Update

Dear Colleagues,

Just when I thought spring was here, winter came back with the weather we did not get in winter.

The dynamic nature of safety on farms, on construction sites, forestry and many other areas was sharply brought into focus, things change - unexpectedly and quickly.

Often our challenge as a safety professional is to be an insightful voice so harm is minimised during critical events, how we prioritise our work often matters.

This month we have continued that work with community engagement and ongoing advocacy for safer furniture standards. During these interactions, I was reminded of the benefits of belonging to a professional organisation that verifies members professional standards, conducts CPD and follows a code of ethics so we can be recognised nationally as a qualified professional.

Belonging to INSPO and HASANZ matters to us, as I am sure it does to you as a member of the NZSC.

We at NZSC value you our members, look forward to continuing our work into 2026, and ask if there is a topic you would like to see in our webinar series, let us know. The last topic of Occupational Hygiene by Mariska Gerbers was insightful, and we will continue them next year.

to improve health and safety in New Zealand.

Thanks again for all you do.

Kind Regards,

Peter Bullock (NZSC Board Chair).

INSHPO Internship!

We have an amazing opportunity for one of our members to take up an internship with INSHPO.

It's a great opportunity for someone to mix with the best and get great insights on what and how global H&S organisations improve and maintain professional standards.

The incumbent would have some admin responsibilities and be expected to attend meetings, along with gaining some valuable learnings & exposure!
